When Henry VIII's first wife is unable to produce an heir to the throne, he asks the Pope to grant him a divorce. The King is backed by everyone except his best friend, Sir Thomas More. Henry appoints him as Chancellor of England expecting his support but Thomas More cannot be persuaded. Henry demands that the clergy renounce the Pope and name him Head of the Church of England. More is forced to resign as Chancellor and is then brought to trial, found guilty of treason and beheaded. This is a great background to your visit to the Tower of London today.

Tomorrow's Trivia

Portsmouth is the home of Nelson's ship HMS Victory and the flagship of the Royal Navy.

In 1805 Nelson died on this ship at the Battle of Trafalgar on receiving news he had defeated the combined French and Spanish ships. His body was preserved in a barrel of brandy on the way back to England where he received a state funeral. Did you know that the powder monkeys were children on the warships who brought the ammunition from below decks to the cannons? They would have been much younger than you and some of the officers would have been your age.

Tomorrow you will visit Arundel Castle, home of the Dukes of Norfolk. The 3rd Duke of Norfolk and his son were condemned to death by Henry V111; the father survived because the king died the day before the execution date; unfortunately, the duke's son was executed a few days before!

Tomorrow's Trivia

When you visit the Roman Baths tomorrow just think that hot water from a natural spring at a temperature of 46 °C (114.8 °F) has poured into the Roman Baths for over 2,000 years at the rate of 1,170,000 litres (257,364 imp gal) per day. That's the equivalent of 4 million cans of coca cola!

Stonehenge was built around 2,800 B.C and designed to align exactly with the sun's rays on June 21. It is the most famous stone circle, or megalith, in existence.

There is a legend that Bath was founded in 860 BC when Prince Bladud, father of King Lear, caught leprosy. He was banned from the court and was forced to look after pigs. The pigs also had a skin disease but after they wallowed in hot mud they were cured. Prince Bladud followed their example and was also cured. Later he became king and founded the city of Bath.

More about Charterhouse: The school has a historic joint claim to having founded Association Football. During the 1840s at both Charterhouse and Westminster School the students' surroundings meant they were confined to playing their football in the cloisters necessitating a new code of rules (this is where you had your barbecue on the first night). When the rules of the Association Football were formulated in the 1860s, representatives of Charterhouse and Westminster School pushed for rules that allowed a forward-passing game. In the early years of the FA Cup, teams formed of ex-pupils from these schools dominated the competition.

Tomorrow's Trivia

At Wimbledon you will come across much information about Andy Murray who in 2013 became the first Britisher to win the Wimbledon singles championship in 77 years!

Henry V111 had a court of over 600 courtiers who had to be fed and there was a need for lavish consumption to prove to enemies he was rich enough to waste money. Consequently, some 200 people were employed in the royal kitchens at Hampton Court and in a typical year the royal kitchen served 8,200 sheep, 2,330 deer, 1,870 pigs, 1240 oxen, 760 calves and 53 wild boar. Before Henry ate, a servant known as 'the sewer' washed his hands with heated, scented water and dried them on a silk towel.

Henry V111 was King of England from 1509 - 1547. Originally a strong Catholic, he wanted to divorce his wife and marry Anne Boleyn against the decree of the Pope. As a result, Henry rejected the Pope and Catholicism and set himself up as Head of the Church in England. This was the beginning of the Anglican Church and the protestant reformation which swept across northern Europe.

Tomorrow's Trivia

A pivotal moment in the history of Canterbury Cathedral was the murder of Thomas Becket in 1170 by King Henry II's knights. The king had frequent conflicts with the strong-willed Becket and is said to have exclaimed in frustration, "Who will rid me of this turbulent priest?" The knights took it literally and murdered Becket in his own cathedral. Henry II was appalled and came to Canterbury to ask for forgiveness. From this time Canterbury became a place of pilgrimage for Christians who came to pay homage to the saint.

Tomorrow's Trivia

Blenheim Palace was built to honour the man considered Britain's greatest soldier, the Duke of Marlborough. Two centuries later, it became the birthplace of the country's greatest wartime leader, Winston Churchill and that is where he was married. Three hundred years later it is considered to be the greatest palace in Britain and is a world heritage site.

The University of Oxford is the second oldest university in the world founded in 1096 (do you know the oldest?). Although the exact date of its foundation remains unclear, there is evidence of teaching there as far back as the 11th century. The University grew rapidly from 1167 when Henry II banned English students from attending the University of Paris. After disputes between students and townsfolk in 1209, some academics fled north-east to Cambridge where they established the University of Cambridge. The two ancient English universities have many common features and are often jointly referred to as Oxbridge.

When Dorothy famously triumphed over the Wicked Witch, we only ever heard one side of the story. Gregory Maguire's acclaimed book re-imagined the Land of Oz, creating a parallel universe to the familiar 'Wizard of Oz'. Wicked tells the story of an unlikely friendship between two girls who first meet as sorcery students at Shiz University: the blonde and very popular Glinda and the misunderstood green girl named Elphaba. Following an encounter with The Wizard of Oz, their lives take very different paths. Glinda's unflinching desire for popularity sees her seduced by power while Elphaba's determination to remain true to herself, and to those around her, has unexpected and shocking consequences for her future. Their extraordinary adventures in Oz will ultimately see them fulfill their destinies.*

Today's Trivia

Harrods occupies a 4.5 acre site in the heart of London and has over 999,000 sq ft of selling space. At night the front is lit up by 12,000 light bulbs, 300 of which need replacing each day. Harrods was the first store in England to install escalators and staff were on duty to assist shoppers who might be distressed by the experience. The food halls are awesome!

Explore St James's Church in Piccadilly built by Christopher Wren in 1684 and find the extraordinary wood carvings by Grinling Gibbons, one of the greatest woodcarvers of all time. Did you know that Christopher Wren, the designer of St Paul's Cathedral, designed part of William & Mary College in Virginia?

Tomorrow's Trivia

Windsor Castle, which you visit tomorrow, has many ghosts including King Henry VIII, Queen Elizabeth I, King Charles I, and King George III. King Henry is supposed to haunt the cloisters near the Deanery with ghostly groans and the sound of dragging footsteps (listen out!).

Tomorrow you will stand where Magna Carta was signed. This great charter protected certain rights of the King's subjects and implicitly supported what became the writ of habeas corpus, which allowed appeal against unlawful imprisonment.

Magna Carta was the most significant influence on the gradual historical process that led to the rule of constitutional law today in the English speaking world. It influenced the development of the common law and many constitutional documents, including the United States Constitution.
