Tomorrow's Trivia

The University of Oxford is the second oldest university in the world, founded in around 1096 (do you know the oldest?). Although the exact date of its foundation remains unclear, there is evidence of teaching there as far back as the 11th century. The university grew rapidly from 1167 when Henry II banned English students from attending the University of Paris. After disputes between students and townsfolk in 1209, some academics fled north-east to Cambridge where they established the University of Cambridge. The two ancient English universities have many common features and are often jointly referred to as Oxbridge.

One of the most fascinating features inside the dome is the Whispering Gallery, located 30 metres (98 feet) above the cathedral floor. Due to the perfect curvature of the walls, whispers can be heard clearly from the opposite side. Try it for yourself with a friend and see how quietly you can whisper to one another!

Tomorrow's Trivia

Henry VIII had a court of 1,000 courtiers who all had to be fed. At that time there was a need for lavish consumption to prove to enemies Henry VIII was rich enough to waste money. Consequently, some 200 people were employed in the royal kitchens at Hampton Court and in a typical year the royal kitchen served 8,200 sheep, 2,330 deer, 1,870 pigs, 1,240 oxen, 760 calves and 53 wild boars.

Henry VIII was King of England from 1509 - 1547. Originally a strong Catholic, he wanted to divorce his first wife Catherine of Aragon and marry Anne Boleyn against the decree of the Pope. As a result, Henry rejected the Pope and Catholicism and set himself up as Head of the Church of England. This was the beginning of the Anglican Church and the Protestant Reformation which consequently swept across northern Europe.

Today's Trivia

A pivotal moment in the history of Canterbury Cathedral was the murder of Thomas Becket in 1170 by King Henry II's knights. The king had frequent conflicts with the strong-willed Becket and is said to have exclaimed in frustration, "Who will rid me of this turbulent priest?" The knights took it literally and murdered Becket in his own cathedral. Henry II was appalled and came to Canterbury to ask for forgiveness. From this time Canterbury became a place of pilgrimage for Christians who came to pay homage to the saint.

Today's Trivia

Hot water from a natural spring has poured into the Roman Baths for over 2,000 years at the rate of 1,170,000 litres (257,364 imp gal) per day. That's the equivalent of 4 million cans of coca cola! The temperature of this water is 46°C (114.8°F)!

According to ancient legend, Bath was established in 863 BC by Prince Bladud, father of Shakespeare's King Lear. Afflicted by leprosy, the prince was banished from his kingdom and was forced to live in exile and look after pigs. Looking to soothe his inflamed skin, he bathed in the area's surrounding muddy springs alongside the pigs and miraculously cured himself of all afflictions. Returning to court joyful and entirely healed, the prince founded Bath around the springs as a token of his gratitude, so others might also benefit as he had done.

Magna Carta was the milestone of individual rights and freedoms which has inspired several important constitutional documents in the 800 years since it was first sealed. It has influenced the development of the common law and many constitutional documents including the United States Constitution.
